nds held in reserve for serveral years by the State Covernment are now opened to set-tlers at their actual value.

These reserved lands lie along the eastern or Atlantic Coast, between St. Augustine and Bis-cayne Bay, one-half mile to six miles from the ocean, a stge portion being far below the frost limits.

This is the only eastern section in the United States where it is possible to raise semi-tropical fruit, and where early vegetables and truit can be raised in time to catch the highes can be raised in time to catch the highest Northern prices.

Much or this land is owned by the Florida Coast Line Canal and Transportation Company, and bears a fine growth or timber, from which large sums may be realized. The section along the indian River and Lake Worth is well settled, and the land is the most valuable in the State, the east coast being tapped by four railways, and the rivers along the coast being navigated by steamboats.

Improved transportation facilities and designitude climate being so near the ocean the air is much more bracing than turther inland; make this an excellent opportunity for actual gettlers.

Saturday afternoon fer a warrant for the arrest of William P. Haas, a fresco painter, who is infatuated with her. She said she was in fear of her life, as he had threatened to kill her. A warrant was issued today, the justice having gone away Saturday. Haas' infatuation has cost him four months' imprisonment in the penitentiary, and he is at liberty now on a five years' good-behavior bond. He is a widower, 35 years old, and Mrs. Pesse is a comely brunette of 28. Mrs. Pesse's husband and Haas were warm friends. Not long after Pesse's death his friend began to pay his addresses to the widow. She repelled him, but Haas threatened to shoot himself unless she became his wife.

He called upon her one evening, fell on his knees and implored her to have pity on him. Mrs. Pesse pounded his head with a washboard. A few nights later he set fire to the flames in which she lived, and when the flames had made a little headway he aroused her by his cries of "Fire!" and told her to jump from the window so that he could rescue her. Mrs. Pesse had him arrested and he was sent to the jenitentiary. Last Thursday night he ajpeared at her house and said he had ecuae to kill her or marry her. Mrs. Pesse screams frightened him and he ran out of the house.

He writ there again Friday night and told her to prepare to die. A neighbor who had seen Haas sneak through the hall to the widow's room called a policeman and Haas was ejected. He returned an hour later and fell on his knees below the willow's windows and begged her to flee with him. She emptied a kettle of water over him, but he only became more ardent and a second time a policeman had to order him away.

The dinner was partly a joke, partly a demonstration. William J. Hammer, who was Edison's representative at the Paris Exposition, was the prime spirit in the enterprise. The laboratory had been transformed from a work-a-day appearance as if by magic. Everything was cooked and served by electricity. The diners had no sooner got their teeth into samples from a delicious dish when bang out went the incandescent light and darkness reigned. Then there appeared out of the shadows a couple of hideous, grinning skulls; their eyes shone fire,

their mouths shot forth flames, their jaws moved, snapping like crocodiles, and from their throats came sounds as if

WITH SIMPLE SERVICE.

THE IMPRESSIVE PUNERAL OF THE DEAD SECRETARY.

The Great Men of the Nation De Honor t His Memory-An Immense Concourse at the Church of the Covenant-The Private Services at the Home of the

While the warm sun was bathing the cantiful city in its golden flood of Hight. the remains of the late William Windom, Secretary of the Treasury, lay in the darkened parlor of his palatial residence awaiting its final interment in the narrow house which shall be its tenement until the judgment day. Around him the gloomy atmosphere of grief pervaded the apartment, while his sorrowing friends and sympathizing fellow-citizens, who realize the nation's loss, passed slowly by his coffin with bowel heads. Men from every walk of life, from the resident to the most lowly, came to view the body of the dead Secretary.

The Executive Departments, District Government Buildings, postofilees and public schools were closed in respect to the memory of the deceased. The Supreme Court of the United States met, and recessed until after the funeral services. The entire city seemed to be in mourning. The flags on the Executive Departments drooped at half-mast about their staffs; the great Treasury Building, the scene of the Secretary's greatest achievements, and all its bureaus, heavily draped in mourning, rendered the scene about the city decidedly impressive.

The Navy Department shronded in mourning for George C. Baheroff, late Secretary of the Navy, and the Department of Justice draped in mourning for the late Attorney-General Devens, added to the solemnity of the occasion. Indeed an air of sadness prevailed the entire city.

Early in the morning people commenced to arrive at the beautiful house on Massachuseits avenue until the crowd swelled into an immense concourse, lining the opposite terrace and the street. Outside a martial appearance was given by a company of Treasury Guards, groups of mounted policemen, with their military trappings and brass spurs.

In the house all was quiet and peaceful. The coffin containing the body with its sombre covering was encircled with a simple wreath of violets, placed by the gentle fingers of his daughter Nellie. The dark-red curtains were half drawn, giving the interior of the room a dim, uncertain light. Resting around the walls were the exquisite floral tributes. The servants stood with bowed heads I amenting the decease of their beloved master and directing the steady line of people that flowed in the door.

Mrs. Windom desired that a private service should be held for the family only, and at 11 a. m. the doors were closed. In a few moments young Mr. Windom, with his bereaved mother learning upon his arm, appeared at the stafress of the Cabinote Americane of the Baltimore. Mrs. Panel of Baltimore. Mrs. Windom desired that a private service should be held for the family only, and at 11 a. m. the doors were closed. In a few moments young Mr. Windom, with his bereaved mother leaning upon his arm, appeared at the staircase and slowly led her into the room, empty save for the presence of the dearl.

The other immediate members of the family followed, consisting of the Misses Windom, Mrs. W. D. Windom, Mr. George E. Hatch, Miss Hatch, Mr. John Douglas, Mrs. Garfield, Mr. Harry Garfield, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. For a moment the doors were closed, while the family took a last look at the husband and father. Then the sliding door which separated the parlors was slowly pushed aside, and revealed the President and Mrs. Harrison, the members of the Cabinet and their wives, Secretary Halford and Miss Dimnaick and Mr, and Mrs. Russell Harrison.

Rev. Dr. Hamili of the Church of the Covenant then stepped to the centre and performed the simple and touching service of the charch. It was a very solemn moment, and the tears started unbidden to the eyes of every one.

At 11:30 o'clock the service was ended and the lid of the coffin covered the face of the dead Secretary. Tenderly the pall-bearers lifted the ceffin and carried it to the hearse waiting at the door. This beautiful edifice, in chaste ecclesiastical design, was filled with a vast con-course, comprising more officials of Presi-dent Harrison's administration than have ever before gathered together in one city, and awe inspiring in its simple gran-leur. Gathered within the walls of the stately white marble church were the nations greatest statesmen, the most renowned diplomats of foreign countries, the highest efficers of the Army and Navy of the United States, the most brilliant women of the social world, while mingling in the vast crowd were many whose plain dress bespoke their position in social life, and emphasized the great truth that death levels all rank." The Justices of the United States Supreme Court attended in a body, and the committees from both Houses of the National Legislature, together with a number of Senators and Representatives not specially directed to be present, but who attended to give their last tribute to the dead statesman and financier.

The Minnesota delegation were present on mose and numbers of the employes from the Treasury Department, nearly all the heads of the Departments being present, and the Diplomatic Corps was well represented. The members of the Cabinet were the honorary pall-beavers.

As the notes of the organ softly stole over the air Mrs. Windom, bowed with her terrible grief, leaning heavily upon the airn of her son, appeared at the door. Slowly and with uncertain step she walked up the aisle, followed by the President and the Cabinet and the family and servants. The coffin, borne upon the stalward shoulders of the uniformed soldiers, still had the simple wreath of violets enciscling its sides.

The congregation, which mimbered the most prominent men of the nation, rose simultaneously. Mrs. Windom appeared at the door, and the teans glistened in the eyes of nearly every person present.

As the middle of the aisle was reached by Hamilia spoke the beautiful exhortation, commencing "I am the resurrection and the life." As the chancel was reached, almost hidden beneath overspreading palms and ferns and calla lilies, the body was rested on the bier and the service commenced. Sweetly the choir sang, "Let Me to Thy Sweetly the choir sang. 'Let Me to Thy Bosom Fly.'

Then 1r', Hamlin delivered the cology, touching and touder in its sorrow, as he spoke of the very excellent Christian life of the dead man. He spoke for some time, reviewing briefly the life and work of the Secretary, and praying that his soal rest peacefully on the bosom of the Father whom he had worshiped so faithfully and well.

Then the immense congregation bowed their heads, as the minister prayed with broken voice, closing with the Lord's Prayer, in which, with scarcely articulate voices, the congregation joined. Then he pronounced the benediction.

Again the funeral coriege retraced its steps down the aisle, preceded by Dr. Hamlin. At the door the party entered the carriages.

A BANK ROBBER CAUGHT IN MEXICO.

He Robbed a Canadian Institution of One and a Half Millions. New York, Feb. 2.—The Daily Continent this morning publishes the following The Pinkerton Detective Agency in this city has been informed by its agent in the City of Mexico that the Mexican police and arrested James N. Henry, who is wanted in Canada on the charge of robbing the Bank of Montreal of cash and securities amounting to $1,00,000.

Henry's big haul was made on December 13, last. He was an exchange broker at Chatham, Ontario, and usually carried a large amount of bank securities. On the above date he disappeared, and an investigation showed that the theft was one of the largest that ever occurred in Canada. He was known to have crossed the American border, but by the time Pinkerton's men were notified he was probably in Mexican territory. ity has been informed by its agent in the men were notified he was probably in Mexican territory.

In the early part of January the Mexican authorities were notified of the robbery and were given a full description of the stolen securities. All the banks in that Republic were also notified.

In the meantime a stranger had arrived in the City of Mexico and attempted to negotiate certain securities with the agency of a London bank. They knew that the securities were part of those stolen from the Bank of Montreal, and the latter institution was advised of Henry's whereabouts. Detectives were sent after him and his arrest followed.

The prisoner will start for Canada this week.

MUST RETURN HER PRESENTS.

But Young Mrs. Fishblatt Says She'll Not Go Back to Her Husband. New York, Feb. 2.—Judge Fallon of the Harlem Civil Court handed down his decision in a somewhat remarkable case Saturday. It was an action in repleyin in which Addie L. Fishblatt sued her hosband, Philip Fishblatt, for the return of her clothes and wedding presents. The plaintiff is 18, and was represented by her father, John H. Forbush of 3 West One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street, and the defendant, who is 19, was represented by his father, Samuel Fishblatt of 1574 Madison avenue. The young couple were married only a few weeks ago, having a wedding on a fine scale. Fishblatt was a Hebrew and his wife a Methodist. Religious differences soon upset the even lecision in a somewhat remarkable case was a Rebrew and his wife a Methodist. Religious differences soon upset the even tenor of their lives.

Fishblatt locked his wife in her room, after having placed all her clothes and shoes in a trunk, in order that she could shoes in a trunk, in order that she could not go visiting. On the first possible occasion the young wife flet to her parents home, and has remained there ever since. Her husband would not give up her clothes, so she brought suit for them through her father. Judge Fallon gave a decision in her favor for the clothes, valued at $2,400, and wedding presents valued at $2,400, and wedding presents valued at $5,000. The adjourned hearing of the writ of hubers corpus, in which Fishblatt petitions for the return of his wife, will be held to-morrow in the Supreme Court. The girl says she will not return to him. Divorce proceedings are in progress.

RIOTING AT CARBON HILL,

Number of Colored Miners Killed in the Fray.
BIRMINGHAM, ALA., Feb. 2.—The riots at Carbon Hill are still in progress and two companies of State troops have been or-dered to the scene by Governor Jones. There was more bloodshed yesterday, but it is impossible to learn its extent. Not less than eight or ten negroes have been killed and possibly more. A number of white men who were concerned in the shooting have banded together and defy arrest.

Trainmen that reached town yesterday report that seven negroes were killed in the cabin Friday night unstead of four as at first reported, and that nine more were killed on Suturday night. All the trouble there seems to have grown out of the de-termination of the white miners to drive away the colored miners. The negroes, so far as can be learned, have made no re-sistance, and no white men are reported sistance, and no white men are reported killed or injured.

Eight hundred to one thousand miners are employed at the Carbon Hill mines and only 125 of them are negroes. Nearly all reports agree that the negroes have been shot down without provocation.
Dispatches from Carbon Hill at mid-night say that the men who were defying arrest have announced that they will sur-cender to the Sherift.

ANOTHER NAVAL BATTLE.

GOVERNMENT VESSEL DEFEATS A REVOLUTIONARY MAX-OF-WAR.

Communication With Santiago de Chili Again Interrupted-Pronounced Agitation Among Socialists in Europe and Measures of Protection are Being Adopted Other Foreign News. Loxpox, Feb. 2.-Information has reached Buenos Ayres of another navat engagement off Anond. The battle was fought between a Government war vessel and a revolutionary man-of-war, the latter being defeated. It is thought that the ships engaged were the two vessels heretofore spoken of-the insurgent ship which anded the revolutionist marines at An and and the Government vessel which failed in an attempt to land troops at that port under cover of the British flag, which she displayed as a diaguise. Communica-tion with Santiago de Chili and other towns which had been restored is again interrupted. Losnox, Feb. 2—All indications point Loxbox, Feb. 2.—All indications point to a more pronounced agitation among the Socialists in Europe this spring than in the earlier part of last year. In Austria, Belgium and Spain workmens clubs have already declared in favor of a great labor demonstration on the first of May; one that will take in every capital of Europe west of Russia, and that will include every branch of manual labor. The Socialistic propaganda is no longer contined to the actual working classes. The leaders of the agitation are paying special attention to the army, and in Belgium yesterlay their success was shown by a demonstration on the part of some recent levies that, for a time, created genuine alarm.

In Portugal, too, the authorities are convinced that the Operto insurrection was the work of Socialists. Notwithstanding the vigilance of the Kaiser and heavy penalties imposed on soldiers detected in reading the prohibited literature of Socialism, pamphlets and newspapers teaching Socialistic doctrines are circulated in every barracks, and can hardly fall to have some effect upon the German army.

Socialistic doctrines are circulated in every barracks, and can hardly fall to have some effect upon the German array, highly disciplined though it is. The Socialists are also giving much time and effort to proselytism among the agricultural classes, who have been heretofoxe neglected.

The proposed meeting of a conference representing European sovereigns to determine upon measures of mutual protection against the agitation of Socialists and Amarchists has not yet been held, although Austria and Germany have had some discussion on the spiciet. France has taken no notice of the suggestion, and the British Government, however willing, dare not join in any measure that might seem to infringe personal liberty and the privilege of asylum.

Mr. Gladstone evidently has no Intention of retiring from public life for the present. He has taken a house for the season on Park Lane, overlooking Hyde Park. It is known that the recent rumors of his intended withdrawal from public life have burt Mr. Gladstone's feelings, so much so that he refuses to reply to any inquiry on the subject. Mr. Morley is reported as saying that Mr. Gladstone is in vigorous condition, both of mind and body, and means to persevere in the pushing of the great reforms which he is certain will eventually triumph, and that the Liberal party is as united as ever in support of their leader.
